Councillor pleased by premier's art gallery 'vision'

Yvette

Metro | Halifax

Halifax Coun. Wayne Mason said he was pleasantly surprised by Premier Stephen McNeil's comments to regional council on Tuesday outlining his "vision" for a new art gallery on the waterfront.

"I was really quite taken by how the premier had some really in-depth views on transit, transportation and arts," Mason said.

"It was surprising that it (a new art gallery) was one of the points he focused on. But I'm glad to hear it because I think it's definitely a missing piece of what we need to see downtown."

Mason said the idea to build a new art gallery has been "floating around" since he was first elected in 2012 and he believes it's long overdue.

All three provincial party leaders addressed Halifax councillors on Tuesday to talk about how they would work with council if elected to lead the province on May 30.

NDP leader Gary Burrill outlined his commitment to improve public transit. He said if elected, he'd commit to an annual $5 million investment to help the city create a commuter rail system to help ease some of its traffic congestion woes.

Tory leader Jamie Baillie said he wasn't going to make any political promises during his address to council, but said he was prepared to sit down and work out a renewed HRM charter. He also discussed challenges around growth, density and transit and talked about a "provincial capital district" designation for the city.

Councillors agree to salary formula

Yvette d'Entremont
Metro | Halifax

After a lengthy debate that included two proposed amendments that were turned down, Halifax regional councillors voted in favour of a new formula for calculating their pay.

The new formula means councillors' remuneration will be determined using Statistic Canada's Nova Scotia Average Industrial Weekly (AIW) earnings from September to September.

The formula would have meant a smaller raise for councillors last year.

The report brought to Halifax Regional Council on Tuesday also recommended councillors be given an option to enrol in a pension plan and that transition pay be available for councillors who choose not to re-offer or who are defeated following an election.

Bedford Coun. Tim Outhit proposed an amendment to the motion that would only allow for a transition allowance if a councillor is not re-elected.

He outlined his view that those who choose not to re-offer shouldn't qualify.

"One of the motivators for this whole thing...is that we're trying to relate more to the folks that we represent," Outhit said.

"I just don't know how many of those when they decide to quit a job would get three months, six months, a year of salary versus being terminated. I'm really struggling with that."

Coun. Lisa Blackburn was one of four councillors who supported Outhit's suggestion.

She described the process of councillors making decisions about their own salaries as "icky."

"When it comes to the transition allowances, I agree with Coun. Outhit with regards to it should be restricted to folks who are not re-elected," she said.

Coun. Steve Adams also brought forward an amendment to the council remuneration motion.

He suggested council agree to the recommendations, but not implement them until 2020. Until that time, salaries would be frozen.

"No matter what we do we are going to be wrong. I guarantee it, so I'm going to try my very best to be as least wrong as possible," Adams said.

That suggested amendment was also defeated.

+ VOTING

Following the debate, 16 voted in favour of the remuneration formula change and one voted against it. On the question of the pension issue and transition allowance, 15 voted in favour of the motion as presented and two voted against it.

Zero-waste shopping lands in Maritimes

RETAIL

Unpacked Halifax sells goods without packaging

Haley Ryan
Metro | Halifax

A new Halifax business is taking the packaging out of shopping.

Starting as a popup at farmers markets and events around the HRM, Caira Clark launched Unpacked Halifax this May as the east coast's first zero-waste store providing package-free food, home, and body products.

"People are very aware of environmental issues. We have a good recycling system ... and there's lots of environmental organizations so I think in terms of the kind of climate in Halifax it works well for an environmental-based business," Clark said Tuesday.

A sustainability graduate from Dalhousie University, Clark said she became interested in the zero-waste lifestyle over the past couple of years, as people try to create as little garbage as possible. She saw similar businesses starting in Europe, the U.S., and British Columbia.

The first Unpacked popup occurred a couple of weeks ago at Patagonia for Open City, Clark said, and it was amazing to see how many people were dropping in.

Caira Clark, founder of Unpacked Halifax CONTRIBUTED

"People were coming in who had found us online and were pretty enthusiastic. It was great and there was lots of new people who just happened upon us that were interested as well," Clark said.

Clark said while some cities like Montreal and Toronto are home to zero-waste initiatives, her model is the first in the Maritimes.

Anyone can bring their own reusable containers like glass jars, Tupperware, cloth bags and more to Unpacked, Clark said, then choose a product like flour, beans, shampoo, dish soap or detergent.

"It's mostly products that are really hard to find without packaging," Clark said.

+ SOCIAL MEDIA

Follow Unpacked Halifax on Facebook and Instagram for popup-shop updates.

Clark weighs the container, fills it up with whatever the customer wants, and the price is the cost of the product along a 100 gram metric that varies depending on the goods.

All the Unpacked products come from Nova Scotia except their quinoa, which is from Saskatchewan, Clark said.

Although many Canadians likely heard about zero-waste shopping when Bulk Barn announced they'd allow reusable containers this year, Clark said for those who are curious, there are many reasons to try and branch out with local products, including cutting down on your carbon footprint.

"It's affordable because you can buy as much or little as you like of products, and also there's health benefits as well because you're not buying processed goods," Clark said. "It's really easy."

Although Clark has a day job right now and runs Unpacked with help from family and friends, she said if the momentum continues she'd like to expand into a physical storefront.

Survey finds most don't want Cornwallis's name removed

Haley Ryan
Metro | Halifax

New numbers show the majority of Haligonians surveyed would prefer to keep Edward Cornwallis's name displayed around the city.

The survey from Corporate Research Associates Inc. (CRA) released Tuesday comes nearly a month after Halifax regional council voted in favour of an expert panel to advise council "regarding any changes to the commemoration of Edward Cornwallis on municipal assets, including Cornwallis Park and Cornwallis Street."

In 1749, the so-called founder of Halifax offered a bounty for Mi'kmaq scalps. In recent years, there's been a growing movement to have the statue of him removed from his namesake park.

The survey says 58 per cent of residents in the Halifax Census Metropolitan Area (CMA) disagree Cornwallis's name should be removed from public infrastructure.

Three in 10 (31 per cent) agree the name should be removed, four per cent neither agree nor disagree, and seven per cent do not know or do not offer an opinion on the matter.

The CRA release said men and older residents are more likely than women and younger residents to disagree that Edward Cornwallis's name should be removed.

The results are part of the CRA Urban Report, a telephone survey of 400 Halifax CMA adult residents, 18 years of age or older, conducted from April 20 to May 6.

Overall results are accurate to within plus or minus 4.9 percentage points, 95 out of 100 times.

Three men facing charges in lobster fraud case

A lengthy RCMP investigation into allegations of fraud and theft involving more than $3 million worth of lobster has led to charges against three Nova Scotia men.

The Mounties say their investigation started in July 2015 when allegations arose that a man from Shag Harbour had allegedly defrauded a Shelburne County lobster company of $175,000 during the previous fishing season.

The RCMP also looked into allegations that a lobster company in Clark's Harbour has been defrauded of over $500,000 in 2014-15, as well as allegations a Barrington company was defrauded of over $500,000, a Shelburne County company of $1.7 million and a Taiwan company of over $250,000 — all in 2015-16.

Three men from Shelburne County are charged. They are Terry Dale Banks, 51, of Shag Harbour; Wayne Lawrence Banks, 69, of Shag Harbour; and 51-year-old Christopher Olen Malone, 51, of Port Clyde.

SANDESON TRIAL

Swabs of red staining taken from handgun, officer testifies

The jury in William Sandeson's first-degree murder trial heard Tuesday that Taylor Samson's blood was found on evidence recovered from Sandeson's family's farm.

Sandeson, 24, is accused of killing Samson, 22, on Aug. 15, 2015. Samson's remains were never found.

In Nova Scotia Supreme Court on Tuesday, the jury of seven women and seven men heard testimony from Halifax Regional Police Det. Const. James Wasson, the forensic file co-ordinator in the case.

Wasson processed and photographed evidence seized from Sandeson's apartment, his family's farm and his vehicle, and sent evidence to the RCMP forensic lab in Ottawa for testing.

That evidence included swabs of red staining on Sandeson's

Wasson didn't indicate the results of all testing during his testimony on Tuesday, but he said the red staining on the duffel bag and the blue tarp were both found to be Samson's blood.

On the handgun, Wasson said he found six bloodstains, and sent off a sample from the largest one, which tested positive for human blood with a presumptive test. The Crown said in its opening statement that Samson's DNA was found on that gun and the bullet lodged in Sandeson's window casing.

CRIME

Police say girls sexually assaulted

A Halifax man has been charged in connection with the sexual assault of two teenage girls on a bus.

On Saturday at 11:11 p.m., Halifax Regional Police received a report that a man on a Halifax Transit bus had approached two 13-year-old girls and touched them in a sexual manner.

One of the girls called a parent to tell them about what happened, who then called police.

Officers arrested the man without incident in the 0-100 block of the Bedford Highway at 11:19 p.m.

He was held in custody over the weekend.

Police didn't say on which route the incident happened.

Zachery Thomas Richard, 23, of Halifax has been charged with two counts of sexual assault, one count of breach of probation and one count of breach of an undertaking.

MANCHESTER

Many parents still waiting to hear from their children

Names of the victims are beginning to emerge after Monday night's deadly bombing at an Ariana Grande concert in Manchester, England.

For a crowd of mostly young British music fans, the concert was supposed to be a school night out of enjoying cheerful high-energy pop. It quickly turned into sheer terror.

A suicide bomber detonated a powerful explosive device moments after the American singer wrapped up her show Monday night in Manchester, sending people into a desperate search for missing family and friends. The blast killed 22 people and wounded 59 others, with 12 of the wounded under the age of 16, officials said.

One of the victims has been identified as eight-year-old Saffie Rose Roussos, a "beautiful little girl" who was taken to the concert by her mother.

Saffie was remembered fondly by Chris Upton, the head teacher at Tarleton Community Primary School.

"Saffie was simply a beautiful little girl in every aspect of the word," Upton told The Guardian. "She was loved by everyone and her warmth and kindness will be remembered fondly."

+ DETAILS

- Prime Minister Theresa May said Britain's terror threat level had been raised to critical — meaning another attack may be imminent. The status means armed soldiers could be deployed instead of police at public events including sports matches.
- Daesh claimed responsibility for the attack. Manchester Police Chief Ian Hopkins identified the bomber as 22-year-old Salman Abedi.

Another victim is 18-year-old Georgina Callander, who studied health and social care at Runshaw College in Lancashire.

The school released a statement on Facebook saying, "Our deepest sympathies, thoughts and prayers go out to all of Georgina's friends, family, and all of those affected by this loss."

Charlotte Campbell was among the parents still looking for their children. She told BBC Radio 4's Today program that her 15-year-old daughter, Olivia, was still missing.

"I'm at home phoning everybody: hospitals, police, the centres that the children have been put in," Campbell said. "Her dad's in Manchester looking for her. I've got friends looking for her. I've got people I don't even know looking for her ... And I'm just hearing nothing. Her phone's dead." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICES

Increased security planned for Salt-n-Pepa show

The Scotiabank Centre in Halifax says there will be an extra security presence for the I Love the '90s tour event on Wednesday night, following Monday's deadly bombing that killed 22 people at an Ariana Grande concert in Manchester, England.

The show begins at 7:30 p.m. and will feature Salt-n-Pepa, along with other favourites such as C+C Music Factory and Young MC.

"In addition to standard security measures, such as bag checks, we will have an increased security and police presence for the event," Events East spokesperson Erin Esiyok-Prime told Metro Halifax in an e-mail.

"We have an emergency operations plan and a crisis communications plan that we evaluate and update regularly based on world events and our experiences."

Several event venues across Canada responded by boosting their security:

- Winnipeg's MTS Centre will have a bomb-sniffing dog on site for Friday's Red Hot Chili Peppers show, bolstering other classified security measures.

- Toronto's Air Canada Centre will have more boots on the ground for upcoming performances including the Weeknd and Neil Diamond.

JESSICA ALLEN ON HOT BLACK COFFEE FOR A NEW AGE

Food wasn't just a detail in Twin Peaks: It was central to the show's humour — something the reboot may have forgotten.

Everyone is talking about how strange the new Twin Peaks is. Critics are saying television hasn't been this odd since, well, the original Twin Peaks aired back in 1990.

No surprise there. Welcome back to the weird and wonderful mind of David Lynch.

But two things struck me while watching the first four episodes of the 18-part continuation. First, where are the coffee, cherry pie and jelly-filled doughnuts? And second, who would have thought that coffee and doughnuts would have morphed into a world of almost unfathomable oddity?

"Coffee culture" happened so gradually that we didn't even know it.

It's been 25 years since FBI Agent Dale Cooper tells Sheriff Truman in the first season of Twin Peaks to treat himself every day, whether it be to an office catnap or "two cups of good hot black coffee."

The new series lets us examine the evolution from diner coffee to unicorn frap-puccinos with wonderment.

By way of introduction may I remind you of the Cronut? I doubt even the Log Lady could've predicted that, not to mention $6 cups of cold brew, gourmet matcha green tea doughnuts — even gluten-free doughnuts, a metaphysical feat only achievable in the extra dimensional Black Lodge.

Food was omnipresent in many of the so-called Golden Age of Television series that arguably started with Twin Peaks. The diner in Seinfeld is as much a character as the woods are in Twin Peaks. Then there's The Sopranos and Carmela's baked ziti and the pork sandwiches from Satriale's that even the FBI agents following Tony couldn't resist. Junk food and jumbo coffees were basically members of the family on Gilmore Girls.

But food wasn't just a detail in the original Twin Peaks. It was central to the show's humour — something the reboot may have forgotten — and in grounding the characters in a normal world. Sure, there was a lady who got messages from her log but somewhere there was coffee and doughnuts and cherry pie.

If coffee and doughnuts were the bench mark for the norm that let Twin Peaks' wilder flights of fancy soar, it should come as no surprise that in a world of $75 "cat poop" coffee — made from beans partially digested by cats — the show's universe now isn't just weird. It is almost beyond comprehension.

In Twin Peaks, Deputy Chief "Hawk" is opening the old case file on Laura Palmer. There on the table beside him is a pink box of doughnuts. Despite the audience wondering if Norma was forced to use a brand consultant, Truman's cellphone and Ben Horn's weed-infused comestibles, not a lot seems to have changed in the north-west logging town.

So we are hooked again, brought into a mind-altering reality through the basic power of a black cup of coffee and doughnuts. The Tim Hortons execs who are trying to figure out how to mass-produce lattes should take note, before the real world surpasses the new Twin Peaks in its oddity.

Jessica Allen is the digital correspondent on CTV's The Social.

Appropriation prize flap a chance to listen and learn

Vicky Mochama
Metro | Toronto

Two weeks ago, I watched several powerful people gleefully line up to throw money at the opportunity to refuse to hear criticism.

The so-called appropriation prize and the ensuing fallout at major media organizations are not about free speech. This is about who gets to speak and who should be thankful for being allowed to exist.

At times, Indigenous issues overlap with my ill-attended-to specialities: race, gender, and politics. It's a wide umbrella, but it doesn't cover everything.

On those occasions, I read, listen and learn.

In the aftermath of the Joseph Boyden controversy, I read Indigenous writers who, with compassion and fury, asked for transparency.

After the human rights tribunal concluded Canada discriminated against Indigenous children, I read the rulings and listened to Cindy Blackstock's fierce advocacy.

Slowly but surely, I'm working through the Truth and Reconciliation Commission report. It's a harrowing read, but essential.

I say this not to self-congratulate, but to say that I am still in the shallow end. Every new piece of information leads to more questions, which leads to answers that only ask more questions. Until I can swim in the deep end with Indigenous people, I'm going to do my best to stay in my lane.

And that's what the appropriation prize organizers and their supporters need to do. Because in a short period of time, they revealed the things we — Indigenous, Black, racialized people — suspected to be true: That for them, our cultures, like ourselves, can be put up for auction. That our histories, our pains, our joys (if we're allowed that), our style — the things that make us strong and unique — are available to most ambitious imitators.

For us, it's a time for listening and for learning. For progress and reconciliation to work, speaking up cannot mean speaking over.

In Indigenous Writes, a friendly and righteous raft for these waters, Chelsea Vowel says, "What we cannot do is pretend the subject matter is anything but difficult. Sometimes, we will simply have to agree to disagree." Still, she insists that it can be done.

The most consistent voices asking for explanation, accountability and apology were Indigenous.

They are the voices to listen to.

MANCHESTER ATTACK

Stars show solidarity after terror at Ariana Grande concert

Attacks such as the deadly bombing that killed 22 people at an Ariana Grande concert in Manchester, England were a “real fear” that was “discussed frequently” while touring in Europe, Canadian rap star Drake said Tuesday.

In a post on Instagram, the Toronto-raised rapper wrote: “My condolences to all of the families affected and we will be praying for all of Manchester. Also, I am praying on peace of mind for Ariana,” he wrote.

Monday’s explosion sparked a stampede of young concertgoers, some still wearing Grande’s trademark kitten ears and holding pink balloons. Authorities said an eight-year-old girl was among the dead.

Drake was one of several Canadian stars with teenage followings who voiced sympathy and solidarity Tuesday for those affected by the attack.

Teen idol Shawn Mendes, pop singers Justin Bieber, and Alessia Cara as well as YouTube star Lilly Singh all took to Twitter with messages of support.

Mendes, who is scheduled to play in Paris on Wednesday, described himself as “completely heartbroken.”

“I am truly so sorry about what has happened in Manchester tonight. Unthinkable events. All my love to the families affected,” he said.

Cara helped circulate an online list of those still missing after Monday’s show, adding “my heart is with u, Manchester.”

Bieber simply tweeted the hashtag #PrayForManchester.

Singh, who was set to perform in Malaysia on Tuesday, tweeted: “My heart and prayers go out to Ariana and everyone at her show in Manchester. I can’t even imagine the feeling. No words.”

Since it launched in 1983, Montreal comedy festival Just For Laughs (JFL) has hosted joke giants like Jim Carrey, John Cleese, Rowan Atkinson, Dave Chappelle and Tim Allen. But unknown comics also know that if you kill at JFL, you won't be unknown for long.

Held each July, the festival has become a jesting juggernaut that can launch a career.

Among the success stories is Kevin Hart (Ride Along, Get Hard) who made his JFL debut during 2001's New Faces showcase and has gone on to a huge stand-up and acting career. Similarly, JFL has exploded, expanding from a two-day event to one that lasts the entire month of July.

The festival's brand is so strong that its shows are regularly programmed on the Comedy Network, and tourists and comics from around the world now descend upon the city's busy Latin Quarter annually, making it bustle with activity each summer as club shows compete with big galas at the Saint-Denis Theatre.

Need further proof of JFL's comic pedigree? Its website is hahaha.com.

ENJOY A SAVOURY BRUNCH WITH SOME FRENCH FLAIR

'Le Bistro is unique as the atmosphere is uplifting, warm and inviting'

This weekend treat yourself to brunch with a French twist at Le Bistro By Liz.

Indulge in banana bread French toast topped with real maple syrup accompanied by crispy bacon — it's a meal and dessert all in one dish! There's also three different styles of eggs benny with house-made hollandaise sauce, or try the delicate crepes florentine stuffed with scrambled eggs, veggies, cheese and drizzled with hollandaise sauce.

"Our weekend brunch is the piece du resistance," said owner Liz Ingram-Chambers.

And to top it all off Liz offers a free mimosa, bloody mary or caesar with an entrée price.

Le Bistro By Liz is a very special place. You can sit back and enjoy decadent meals in an open and airy French setting with white and red checkered table cloths in a glassed-in atrium, French-style lanterns, and large fig trees strung with sparkling lights, which look especially lovely at night.

The restaurant is a passion, joy and love for Ingram-Chambers. When the space in the ground floor of the Park Vic opened six years ago, Ingram-Chambers jumped at the chance to reincarnate the original Le Bistro Café, which operated there many years ago.

Her family pitched in and she started building her restaurant from the ground up — completely renovating and renewing the space. They opened in December of 2011.

"Le Bistro is unique as the atmosphere is uplifting, warm and inviting," said Ingram-Chambers. "We pride ourselves on the best in guest service, not pretentious but caring and sincere with more than just food and beverages. I would say that we feed and nourish the soul too."

She describes the menu as comfort food with a French flair.

"Our crepes are sumptuous, full of seafood or chicken with delicate sauces covering each one. Our lamb shank smothered in mint demi glaze is a must have and our hand cut pomme frites are tossed in a malt vinaigrette powder that take them to a whole new level," she said. "The best dessert hands down is our yummy lemon parfait pie."

REVIEW

In-between Lexus IS model
outperformed
by rest of series

Sami
Haj-Assaad
AutoGuide.com

Lexus is playing catch up in the sport sedan segment and one way it's trying to compete is by introducing new trim levels in its popular IS series.
For many, the base IS 200t is a great choice, but it's only available with rear-wheel drive. While the range-topping IS 350 drives all four wheels, it's expensive and fuel thirsty. To try to alleviate this issue, Lexus has introduced the IS 300 AWD, a model in the middle of the lineup that can only be had with all-wheel drive.
While the four-cylinder turbo-charged Lexus IS 200t starts at $42,195, the IS 300 AWD comes in at $44,995, commanding a $2,800 premium for two extra drive wheels and cylinders. It sounds like a good deal, at first.
The IS 300 AWD has 14 ponies over its smaller displacement, turbocharged brother, but is down 22 lb-ft of torque. The lack of twist is noticeable and the IS 300 AWD feels slow and pokey to get going. And it seems much less powerful and torquey than the range-topping IS 350, which has 50 more hp and 40 more lb-ft of torque.
There's also no benefit at the pumps for getting the IS 300 AWD over the IS 350 AWD, which starts at $55,395. If buyers thought they would get some fuel savings by opting for the less powerful V6, they should think otherwise and consider the much more fuel efficient IS 200t.

The engine does, however, provide smooth and linear acceleration and doesn't impact the solid driving dynamics of the car. Steering is good, which is to say it's well-weighted and responsive. Even the steering wheel itself is nice and chunky, with lots to hold onto and a progressive steering feel with none of the weirdness you get from variable ratio racks.
The chassis is also pretty good, meaning that the car reacts to direction changes well, but without the harshness that comes from cars trying to be too sporty. It's best described as smooth and obedient. The suspension in particular is really balanced between soft and stiff.
It's worth talking about the polarizing interior of the car. With plenty of odd angles inside the cabin, it's definitely not the most user-friendly, with bizarrely placed vent openings and an infotainment screen that's far and deep into the dashboard.
The infotainment system has to be one of the worst designs available on the market, thanks to an imprecise and hyperactive mouse-like controller, it's a pain to select items on the screen. It makes it extremely frustrating to control the navigation or make calls while driving and requires too much attention.
It's hard to recommend this over the two other models in the lineup.

COOLEST STOCK HOODS ON THE MARKET

They're not as flashy as big spoilers or gullwing doors, but not all hoods have to be boring. Hoods serve the utilitarian purpose of protecting the engine bay, but some automakers use functional scoops and vents to make their hoods cool — and keep the engine bay even cooler. Others get fancy on how their hoods open, while some just have a real flashy design. JASON SIU/AUTOGUIDE.COM

1 Dodge Challenger SRT Demon

The top spot on the list goes to the 2018 Dodge Challenger SRT Demon. Dodge says the Demon has "the largest functional 'air grabber' cold air intake hood ever installed on a production vehicle, measuring more than 45 square inches." Combined with the two "air catcher" headlamps, the automaker says the Demon's air intake temperatures are up to 30 degrees cooler than the regular Hellcat.

2 Jaguar F-Type

The Jaguar F-Type isn't a Plain Jane luxury sports coupe. The British automaker gave it a fancy front-hinged hood. There's also a pair of vents to give the F-Type some breathing room, which aren't a necessity for the turbocharged four-cylinder engine, but are welcomed on the range-topping SVR model powered by a 5.0-litre supercharged V8.

3 Ferrari LaFerrari Aperta

Technically speaking, under the hood of the Ferrari LaFerrari is its trunk because the engine is located at the rear of the car. But that didn't stop the Italian automaker from outfitting the compartment with a pair of cooling fans for the front rads. Space is limited, but the stylish hood and vents give it so much appeal.

4 Subaru WRX STI

The WRX STI's hood does more than just give the sports sedan a more aggressive appearance: It helps keep the turbocharged four-cylinder engine nice and cool, making sure performance is always up to par. It has also become a trademark feature of the car's design, having been present for many generations.

5 Chevrolet Camaro ZL1 1LE

The Chevrolet Camaro ZL1 1LE is a track-focused model featuring special aero components, adjustable suspension and exclusive tires. More subtle than some of the other designs, it's sleek and stylish on this coupe. The same style hood is on the standard ZL1 but we love the black treatment it got for the 1LE.

Natural rubber tires driving progress

COMMITMENT

Sustainable tires

GM has made an industry-first commitment to sourcing sustainable natural rubber in its tires.

General Motors is hoping the move will help drive the industry toward net-zero deforestation while upholding human and labour rights. The American automaker believes sourcing tires produced using sustainable natural rubber has benefits for business as well as the environment, including preserving and restoring primary forests along with high carbon stock areas that are critical to addressing climate change and protecting wildlife. It is working with major tire manufacturers including Bridgestone, Continental, Goodyear and Michelin to develop transparency so it can ensure its traceability throughout the supply chain. PARTNERSHIP

Volvo is teaming up with Google

Volvo has announced a new partnership with Google that will result in new in-car infotainment and connectivity for its cars. The Android-based system will launch in Volvo vehicles within two years. Making this move will allow Volvo to tap into an already large ecosystem of apps and programs that Android users currently enjoy. One such example is the integration of Google Local Search, allowing Volvo drivers to find local businesses with a quick search. This functionality will be added through an update to existing Volvo models that have Sensus Navigation. STEPHEN ELMER/AUTOGUIDE.COM

CEO: Diesel days are numbered

Volvo CEO Hakan Samuelsson has said that this generation of diesel engines could be the brand's last.

Volvo predicts that with mid-cycle improvements the engine will be useful until about 2023. After that the cost of developing a new diesel engine will be too high to be feasible.

Sens push Pens to Game 7

2017 NHL PLAYOFFS
SERIES TIED 3-3

Anderson returns to form with 44 saves in victory

The Ottawa Senators are still alive.

Mike Hoffman scored the go-ahead goal early in the third period of Game 6 as the Sens brushed off elimination with a 2-1 win on Tuesday and sent the Eastern Conference final to a decisive Game 7 in Pittsburgh.

Ottawa was facing elimination for the first time in the playoffs.

Bobby Ryan also scored a rare power-play goal for Ottawa and Craig Anderson was terrific with 44 saves.

Matt Murray gave up a pair

GAME 6 In Ottawa

on 30 shots and Evgeni Malkin mustered the lone goal for the Penguins, who will shoot for their second straight Stanley Cup final appearance once more on Thursday night.

The Sens managed to quickly forget a 7-0 pounding two days earlier in Game 5, stave off the end of their season and land one more shot at a first Stanley Cup final appearance in 10 years.

"You can see it as an elimination game, or you can see it as an opportunity, and we know what we choose," head coach Guy Boucher said before the game.

Ottawa was primarily looking for a return to structure in Game 6, beginning with a smoother start — which they got.

Notable in a scoreless first frame were two effective penalty kills, one of which saw Viktor Stalberg get the best opportunity shorthanded.

Pittsburgh mostly owned the second, pounding 23 shots on Anderson while mustering 82 per cent of even-strength shot attempts (27-6).

After the two teams traded second-period goals, Hoffman gave the Sens the lead 94 seconds into the third. He blasted a slap-shot past Murray following a backhand feed — and follow-up traffic in front — from Fredrik Claesson.

Anderson stopped all 12 shots he faced in the third to close out the Pens. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sharapova granted wild card for Rogers Cup

Maria Sharapova has been awarded a wild card for the Rogers Cup in August in her comeback from a 15-month doping ban.

Since her return, the former No. 1 player has used wild cards to play three events on the WTA Tour. She was denied a wild card for the French Open.

Rogers Cup tournament director Karl Hale calls her a "fan favourite," noting she has completed her punishment.

Rio Games medals defective

A group of more than 100 athletes from around the world have discovered their medals from the Rio Olympics to be defective.

Rio Games spokesman Mario Andrada said that officials have noted problems with the covering on six to seven per cent of the medals. "The most common issue is that they were dropped or mishandled, and the varnish has come off and they've rusted or gone black in the spot where they were damaged," Andrada said.

Warriors kick down door to Finals

Kevin Durant does not need to be told that Golden State should have a muted celebration after winning the Western Conference final.

Durant is fully aware a tough challenge awaits. It's why Durant signed with the Warriors and why Stephen Curry, Klay Thompson and Draymond Green embraced him at the expense of their own stats.

"We have a bigger goal in mind," Durant said.

Golden State has a chance to earn their second championship in three years after sweeping the San Antonio Spurs with a 129-115 victory Monday night.

The Warriors became the first team in league history to open the playoffs 12-0, which provides them with a week of rest prior to their third straight NBA Finals appearance.

Golden State will host Game 1 of the championship series on June 1 against either Cleveland or Boston. The Cavaliers took a 2-1 lead into Game 4 of the Eastern Conference final Tuesday, but Curry alluded the Warriors are expecting a rematch with LeBron James and company.

"We all know, obviously, who we're going to play," Curry said. "We'll be watching the Eastern Conference final to see how that unfolds. But it will be easy to start this new chapter and really just lock in on what's in front of us."

Facing Cleveland will resurrect chatter of Golden State's collapse in last season's Finals, which saw the Cavaliers rally from a 3-1 deficit to win the franchise's first championship.

"This year is a totally different year, different group, different journey," Curry said.

The Warriors have shown their strength by blasting through the playoffs in the normally rugged West. Golden State is shooting 50 per cent from the field while averaging 118.3 points. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tangy Avocado Chicken Salad Sandwich

Ceri Marsh & Laura Keogh
For Metro Canada

There is no end to the creaminess an avocado can give most any recipe and this tangy chicken salad is no exception.

Ready in 15 minutes

Prep time: 10 minutes
Makes: 4 to 6 sandwiches

Ingredients

- 1 avocado,
- 2 Tbsp fresh lime juice
- 1 tsp fresh cilantro, chopped
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 1/4 cup Greek yogurt
- pinch of salt and pepper
- 4 pitas or 6 mini pitas
- 2 cups cooked chicken, cubed

Directions

1. Slice open your avocado, carefully remove the pit and then use a small, sharp knife to score the flesh. Now use a small spoon to scoop out those avocado cubes.

2. In a large bowl, mix all your ingredients (expect the pitas) together. Be gentle so the avocado keeps some of its shape. Taste for seasoning. If you've got time to cover the salad for half an hour the flavours will deepen.

3. Slice open your pitas and use a spoon to stuff them with salad.

* IT'S ALL IN THE STARS Your daily horoscope by Francis Drake

Aries March 21 - April 20
Be open to new ideas or applications on how to use something that you already own. You also might see new ways of making money.

Taurus April 21 - May 21
Take a realistic look in the mirror to see how you can improve your appearance today. After all, you never get a second chance to make a first impression.

Gemini May 22 - June 21
If you work diligently at something behind the scenes, you will come up with some new results. You have a clever mind, and today you are resourceful.

Cancer June 22 - July 23
You might attract someone powerful today. If so, listen to what this person has to say, because he or she could influence your future goals in some way. (It never hurts to listen.)

Leo July 24 - Aug. 23
A discussion with a parent, boss or authority figure will be powerful today. However, you might have new ideas about how to make improvements or reforms. If so, speak up.

Virgo Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Avoid controversial issues like politics, religion and racial matters today, because people are intense. This means a discussion could turn into a quarrel. You don't need this.

Libra Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Take care of loose details regarding taxes, debt, bills, inheritances and insurance issues today, because you have the focus and concentration to get this done. Ah, freedom!

Scorpio Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Be accommodating with others today, because the Moon is opposite your sign. This means you cannot be demanding. Just go along with whatever happens.

Sagittarius Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Set aside some time today to do something that will make you feel better organized. Give yourself a support system to make your life easier.

Capricorn Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Today you might see a new approach when it comes to a social situation or how you deal with children. Likewise, you might view a romantic situation in a new light.

Aquarius Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Today you will see ways to make improvements at home, or how you can change the way you do things at home. You might see new uses for things you already own.

Pisces Feb. 20 - March 20
This is a strong day for those of you who sell, market, teach, act or write, because your communication skills are direct and forthright. You will be clear about what you want.
